GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

WEDNESDAY, November 1.

SENATE.

The Senate met at 10 o'clock A. M., and was called to order by the Secretary, Mr. Mills.

Prayer by Rev. W. A. Parks.

The roll was called.

Senators from the odd Districts were then called to the bar and qualified, Judge J. H. Parrott administering the oath.

The Secretary announced that nominations for President of the Senate would be in order, when Mr. Hinton nominated Mr. L. N. Trammel.

The roll was taken by yeas and nays, and resulted: Trammell, 32; Welch, 7; and Mr. Trammell was declared to be duly elected.

Messrs. Welch, Hinton and Reese were appointed a committee to notify Mr. Trammell of his election and conduct him to the chair.

Senators: I feel deeply grateful to you for this manifestation of your confidence in selecting me to preside over the deliberations of your body. In taking upon myself the grave responsibility of discharging the duties of the position assigned me, I appreciate the confidence you have so generously reposed, and the great responsibility and binding obligation I take upon myself to you and to the people of Georgia, faithfully, honestly and impartially to discharge the duties thereof. This I promise you I will do, firmly and resolutely, to the best of my skill and ability. I ask of you, in behalf of myself, that charity and indulgence which I trust I may reasonably expect, and entertain the confident hope that our convocation may be for the honor of our good old State, and the advancement of the general prosperity and happiness of all her people.

Mr. Burns nominated Mr. T. W. J. Hill as Secretary, upon which, on the call of the yeas and nays, the vote stood: Hill, 37; Mills, 7; and Mr. Hill was declared elected.

(Mr. Mills was not a candidate)

Mr. Hill was then qualified.

Mr. Candler nominated Mr. A. J. Cameron, of Telfair county, for Messenger, upon which the vote stood—Cameron 41; and Mr. Cameron was declared elected.

Mr. George Hillyer nominated Mr. G. Whit. Anderson, of Atlanta, for Door-keeper, upon which the vote stood—Anderson 39; and Mr. Anderson was declared elected.

Mr. Burns moved that the Senate adjourn until to-morrow at 10 o'clock, A. M., which motion was carried, and the Senate accordingly adjourned.

HOUSE.

The Democratic members of the House of Representatives met in caucus in the Representative Hall at 9 o'clock A. M., and proceeded to nominate candidates for Speaker and Clerk.

J. M. Smith, Esq., of Muscogee, received 88 votes for Speaker.

T. W. Dodd, Esq., received 10.

C. W. Styles, Esq., 43.

Mr. Smith was declared the nominee for Speaker, and Mr. Waddell for Clerk.

At 10 o'clock A. M., the House was called to order and M. A. Hardin said that in the absence of the regular clerk the duty of organizing the House devolved on him.

Judge Harrell administered the oath to the following named members, who came forward and were sworn in, to-wit:

Messrs. Sellers, Tarver, Wofford, Gray, O'Neal, A. Wofford, Peeples, Hunter, Baker, Kennedy, Murphy, Berrien, Cox, Hammond, Paxlin, Russell, Heidt, Kelly, Hillyer, Goodman, Pentecost, Payne, Cody Cleghorn, Richards, Richards, Johnson, Richardson, Davis, McConnell, Matteux, W. D. Anderson, W. P. Anderson, Spence, Carlton, Stovall, Lampkin, Rutherford, Seargent, Smith of Newnan, Graham, Parmer, Williams, Bruton, Goldsmith, Woward, Putney, Joiner, Chaney, Phillips, Rawls, Edwards, Roundtree, Franklin, Whatley, Ballinger, Scott, Hughes, Brawner, Wilson, Hoge, Jackson, Cooper, Braddey, Blue, Fain, McWhorter, Colby, Simmons of Gwinnett, Jones, McMillan, Simmons of Hall, Pierce, Butts, Head, Murphy, Patillo, Jones, Sims, Bryan, Griffin, Ormond, Simmons of Houston, Paulk, Hancock, Watters, Johnson, Beaseley, Martin, Ballon, Guyton, Page, Lipscy, Farmer, Lang, Converse, Riley, Jones, Oliver, Meadows, Harvey, Hall, Moreland, Clower, Brown, Floyd, Dukes, Clements, Bush, Collins, Howell, Campbell, Fields, Smith of Muscogee, Poe, Summers, Davis, Davenport, Smith, Trammell, Allred, Knoles, Baker, Brunn, Hendley, Booth, Turner, Guerry, Netherland, McNeil, Crittenden, Snead, Cumming, Clark, Hudson, Dell, Johnson of Spalding, Mansfield, Lewis, Bradley, Glover, Morris, Waddall, Fiyat, Brenton, Bateman, Craig, Battle, Atkinson, Jones, Kilion, Clark, Cate, Griffin, Reid, Hall of Upson, Wood, Bowie, Morrison, Barksdale, Cloud, Renfroe, Taylor, Bell, West, Emmerson, Mann, Wynn, Slaton, Hooks, Jenkins.

The House then went into the election of a Speaker. Messrs. J. M. Smith and J. R. Griffin were proposed as candidates, with the following vote as a result:

Smith.....121

Griffin.....23

On motion, Messrs. McMillan, Cumming and Griffin were appointed a committee to conduct the Speaker elect to the chair.

Speaker Smith, upon taking his seat, thanked the members for their confidence and advised wisdom, justice and moderation in all their counsels.

The House then went into the election of a Clerk. J. D. Waddell received 131 votes, and J. R. W. Johnson received 21 votes.

Mr. Waddell was then sworn in.

A message from the Executive Department in relation to the contested seats of members from Bibb county, was received. On motion of Mr. McMillan, the matter was referred to a special committee.

Mr. Jackson moved to have a bill repealing the act known as the "Holcomb bill" in relation to the manner of holding elections in the city of Atlanta, read the first time.

This motion was overruled, and the bill went over until to-morrow.

Mr. Scott offered the following resolutions, which he said he merely offered for the purpose of having it read for information.

Resolved, by the General Assembly of the State of Georgia—

1. That Rufus B. Bullock, so-called Governor of this State, who has resigned his office and fled the State, charged with high crimes, in intimating, as he does, in a letter bearing date 23d of October, 1871, addressed to his political friends and the people of Georgia, that a majority of the House of Representatives had pledged themselves to vote for articles of impeachment against him without investigation, and that the Senate had determined to unseat a sufficient number of Republican Senators to secure his conviction without regard to the truth and validity of the charges, has grossly defamed this General Assembly by charges which are utterly false.

2. That the statement in the same letter to the effect that any known portion of the people of Georgia have recently denounced or ignored the Constitution of the United States is utterly false, and grossly defamatory of the people of this State.

3. That there is a vacancy in the office of Governor in said State, and that, for the opinion of this General Assembly, President Trammell, of the Senate, who is entitled, ex-officio as President under the Constitution of this State, to exercise the powers of the Executive Department during the continuance of said vacancy.

4. That a joint committee of two from the House and one from the Senate be appointed to wait on the Honorable B. Conley, who as former President of the Senate, is now exercising the powers of the Executive Department, and communicate the third of these resolutions and report what he may answer thereto.

The House, after the reading of the above resolutions, adjourned until 10 A. M. on Thursday.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Efforts to Shape its Policy in Advance.

Before we shall have the opportunity of writing another leader for the News the Georgia Legislature will have met and organized.

Being a candidate for the Clerkship of the House, we ought not, perhaps, to say anything or make any suggestions as to the policy to be pursued, or the character of the men to be selected as officers of the two houses.

But we may speak as a journalist, and in this regard it is our duty, as well as our privilege.

Shall conservative and unimpassioned counsels prevail, or shall rampant recklessness rule the roost?

This is an important question, and its determination will have much to do with the credit and future prosperity of Georgia.

It is, in our judgment, the extreme of folly, if not a public crime, to hazard the present tranquility and thrift of the people, in vainly reaching out after the shadow that glistens gem-like at the bottom of the waters beneath us.

Proper and vigorous measures should be taken to straighten up our financial affairs, but this should be done under the solemn sanctity of high public duty, and in no spirit of partisan spite or passion for blood. It is a time for patience in investigation, conservatism in conclusions, and patriotic firmness in action.

Hasty, inconsiderate and reckless onslaught might possibly win temporary advantage, but in the end victory would slip from our grasp and make martyrs and heroes of our supposed victims.

We believe a large majority of the Legislature are good men and true; that they will do their duty fearlessly and faithfully. The average attendance of the body is above ordinary. Legislatures heretofore elected, and we regard all attempts to forestall their action, as a sort of bulragging process alike disreputable to the authors, and insulting to the members.

In the extraordinary zeal manifested, in certain quarters, about the organization, we see a purpose to forecast a policy and shape the machinery to grind it through.

Our advice to the Legislature, and we give it with all due deference to that body for what it is worth, is to ignore outside pressure, and disregard the schemes of tricksters and the ravings of fanatics. There is too much at stake to go in on a rip-roaring cantankerous schedule, and the responsibility is too great to be trifled with by the passions and prejudices of irresponsible outsiders. There should, for a time, be no party policy in the Legislature, further than a short resolution declaring it inexpedient to discuss the so-called new departure, and unjust to force alignments on tariff ideas.

In State policy, a call for reports and exhibits from all the State officers, from the Governor down, and their reference to patient, patriotic, intelligent committees, with power to send for persons and papers, seems to us the wisest course, and the safest, surest and speediest solution of all real and supposed difficulties.

This done, the business of the country could go on without interruption till reports should uncover the crimes, misdemeanors and hideous monsters of peculation that are supposed to be lurking under official malverration.

The Democrats have large majorities in both houses, and they are in no danger of losing by hastening slowly, or of being defeated in an earnest search for truth, by impotent minorities. They will have no occasion to give party complexion to any movement, and party strife should be excluded from the halls.

Caucusses are vehicles to circumvent the enemy, where his power is to be dreaded. Where he is too weak to make fight they are tricks to override majorities and give power and prominence to minorities.

If the two Houses, on assembling, shall see proper to go into caucus preliminary to organization, we shall bow with all proper respect and utter no word of complaint, as, personally, we have not the slightest objection; but we can easily see how the two-thirds rule (time-honored in the party) can thwart the will of the majority, and force obnoxious men and measures on the party, or create a sciam in the ranks.

The caucus is not necessary to defeat the enemy in the Georgia Legislature, and therefore must be the hatching of some man or set of men who are afraid they are in a minority in their own party. In such a case the danger is party division, resulting in party weakness. With one hundred majority in the House, we fail to see the propriety or necessity for a caucus.

But these are questions we prefer to leave to the good sense and sound discretion of the members, and we hope they will have the firmness and independence to act uninfluenced by intermedlers.—Albany News.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, November 1.—James Fisk, Jr., was formally arrested last evening on a suit brought by Josephine Mansfield, on a civil action to recover $50,000 of Mansfield's, which Fisk used but failed to account for. He gave bail in $35,000.

A letter from Mansfield to Fisk upbraids him for his perfidy to her, and says it is a shame to compel her, who grew up with him from nothing to the now great Erie empress, to vindicate herself in Court. She refers to his scheme revealed to her four years ago of stealing the Erie books, of staying with him in Jersey City, and how, when he was buying the New York Legislature, he said it would either result in a Fisk palace in New York or a stone palace at Sing Sing; requested her if it was the latter to take the cottage outside the prison. She is willing to have affairs arbitrated by William M. Evarts, but says if his power over the courts is still supreme, and Tammany still able to protect him, the reward may still be his.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, November 1.—The races commence December 5th. There will be three races each day—$10,000 in prizes and stakes.

There will be two hurdle races and one steeple chase during the meeting.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, November 1.—The Daily Enquirer, the leading Democratic organ of Ohio, contains an editorial this morning, expressing a preference for Thomas A. Scott, of Pennsylvania, as the Democratic candidate for President. The article discusses Mr. Scott's fitness for the office at considerable length.

BALTIMORE, November 1.—The boiler in the Calverton Sugar Refinery exploded today killing one and scalding many.

MEXICO.

MATAMORAS, November 1.—The Cossair brings news from the Capital to the 23d ult. All quiet. Diaz is not in the field.

All the Governors have offered Juarez congratulations and support, to suppress the Monterey pronunciamento.

The capitulation of Saltillo is denied. The revolutionists hold the lines of communication between Monterey and the border.

THE ACORN CROP.—In several of our ex changes we find reference made to the abundant crop of acorns this year. At Salem, N. C., we perceive, the crop is being gathered and brought to market as a merchantable commodity—selling at twenty cents a bushel. In this section, also, there is an abundance, and we judge, therefore, that the pork of the coming season will be fattened and his expenditure.

"WE EAT TO LIVE," says a distinguished writer on the laws of health; and if we eat wisely of what good things God has given us to enjoy in a proper way, we shall live well, live healthfully, and live long. We must adapt our food to our occupations and temperaments. For instance, ministers of the Gospel, lawyers, doctors, and editors, do not require pork and beans, or bacon and greens twice a day, as does the man who splits rails, or cuts cord-word. Fortunately, the great Creator has wisely implanted within us a self-acting instinct, to which, if we will but defer, we shall rarely eat that which will not assimilate in the stomach, and make fresh, vicorous blood, with which to nourish our bodies and prolong our days.

Take one wine glass full of Plantation Bitters, once or twice a day, and obey this self-acting instinct, and a full score of years will be added to your life. oct31 deod1w&w1t

SINKING FAST.—Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other specific indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves; tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It can be done. It has been done in thousands of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulent that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the secretions, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as re-inforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall. oct31-deod1w&w1t

For the Ladies.

Personal.

We had a number of calls yesterday from legislative and editorial friends. Mr. Fitch, of the Griffin Star, and Mr. Wootten, of the Newnan Herald, favored us.

General Young.

We copy a very complimentary notice of General Young from the Washington Patriot. We know of our own observation that the General has vigilantly attended to Georgia's interest as one of her Congressmen.

Col. Winder P. Johnson.

This talented gentleman enters upon his legislative career with great promise. He was elected to preside over the House caucus, a distinction itself. He is a son of ex-Governor Herschel V. Johnson, a man of thirty-one years of age, and possessed of talent, nerve and eloquence.

The Organization of the Legislature.

The Legislature was smoothly organized yesterday. The matter was done in a manner full of good augury forthcoming deliberations of that body. Good men were selected for officers. We particularly like the addresses of the presiding officers. They were short, practical and business-like, and give promise of a sensible administration. Both gentlemen evidently mean duty. We look for good things from both President Trammell and Speaker Smith. Both are able, honest, experienced, resolute men. Both will preside with impartiality and acumen. Both are sterling Democrats. Both will make enviable reputations. This is our prediction. All goes well.

Contested Seats—What will the Legislature do?

It is well known that at the elections held in December last, for members of the Legislature and other officers, in many counties of the State, the result was effected by the votes of non-tax-paying citizens. These votes were clearly violative of the Constitution of the State, and alike repugnant to right and justice. Quite a number of the men who hold certificates of election, and who, by this time, are seated in the present Legislature, owe their position to illegal votes. We understand that perhaps several—we know of one—who will contest upon this ground. We rejoice at this, and hope the Legislature will purge itself of all who would wear the robes of office in violation of the fundamental law of the land. The Constitution of the State provides that no one is entitled to vote who has not paid taxes for the year preceding the election.

This is just and equitable, and merits the approbation of all lovers of good government. The right to vote is reciprocal, and no one should ask the benefits and privileges of government who does not bear his proportionate share of its burthens. That a non-tax-payer can vote, no one has the hardihood to affirm. Now, when this issue is made, and made it will be, what will the body do before whom it is made?

We unhesitatingly say, let each contested case stand upon its merits under the supreme law of the land, and the Constitution prevail over the infamous Akerman bill, to which, and alone to which, this illegal voting is due. Be the contestant Democrat or Republican, give him his rights under the fundamental law, and no one can complain.

The Proclamation Business.

STATE OF GEORGIA,
DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
ATLANTA, October 31, 1871.

ORDERED:

By his Excellency, Benjamin Conley, Governor of said State, that all Proclamations offering rewards for the apprehension of criminals, which have heretofore been issued, be, and the same are hereby, revoked.

Given under my hand and seal of office.

DAVID G. COTTING,
Secretary of State.

The following papers will publish the above order one time, to-wit: CONSTITUTION, of Atlanta; American Union, of Macon; Constitutionalist, of Augusta; Republican, of Savannah; Enquirer, of Columbus; and Southern Banner, of Athens.

The above proclamation we find in the Era of yesterday morning. We also find another proclamation in the Era revoking all orders authorizing newspapers to publish Executive orders and proclamations.

This move is a right one, and the Governor pro tem. deserves credit for it. It is a blow at Governor Bullock's extravagant and illegal proclamation system, against which we have been so untiringly battling.

We trust that the Governor pro tem. will continue this good beginning of reform and economy.

It will be observed that THE CONSTITUTION is specified as one of the seven papers designated to publish the above proclamation. This, we presume, is on account of the large circulation of our paper, this fact rendering the selection of any journal proper. We do not know whether this means that we are to continue as one of the few proclamation papers under the new regime.

Without condemning any other journal for different course, THE CONSTITUTION, in this matter, will carry out its long-pursued policy of taking no patronage from the present Radical administration in Georgia, which, in all conscience, has cost us enough already. We decline to publish these proclamations but will cheerfully give them as

Agriculture.

The Agricultural report for October from Washington is before us.

The corn crop is good. The bottom-lands in Georgia have been flooded to an unusual extent at various times, and especially during the great storms of August, and drought has parched thin soils; otherwise the crop would have been superior.

Reports come from the following counties:

Putnam county, Ga.—Most unfavorable season within my recollection for both corn and cotton. Schley county, Ga.—Sufficient for home consumption. Lumpkin county, Ga.—Injured by storm in August by being blown down. Clayton county, Ga.—Injured by wet weather in spring and summer, and severe storm in August. Butts county, Ga.—Injured by drought and by storms. Crawford county, Ga.—Nearly all the corn on the river and large creek bottoms destroyed by floods. Spalding county, Ga.—Over an average. Where it was well cultivated it is superior. Habersham county, Ga.—Bottom corn flooded while in the milk.

Wheat falls seven per cent. below last year. Oats are about as good as last year. The buck wheat crop is poor. The potato crop is below the average, South. The cotton returns for October are unfavorable.

The percentage of the condition of the several States is as follows: North Carolina 80; South Carolina 74; Georgia 72; Florida 73; Alabama 75; Mississippi 76; Louisiana 73; Texas 73; Arkansas 82; Tennessee 94.

The injuries reported are from rust, shedding of bolls prematurely, sufficiently low temperature to check the development of bolls in more northern latitudes, floods and inundations in Florida and Georgia; sprouting or rotting of bolls from rains, drought in some sections of Georgia, and the boll and army worms in portions of Mississippi and more western States.

The number of beeves is greater than usual.

The Cloven Foot Showing.

The Radical organ of yesterday morning had an editorial arguing for Conley's holding Bullock's unexpired term. Its argument is a species of special pleading, whose sophistry needs no answer.

The article is only significant as showing the purpose to keep Conley in the Gubanatorial chair, and therefore confirming the statements we have given as to the conspiracy to prevent the deposition of the Radical dynasty.

We think the law warrants our first conclusion, that Conley is Governor pro tem, and the Legislature can immediately provide for a special election, in which event he must yield to the successor then elected and qualified.

This is the plain letter of the constitution, and we would have it obeyed to the letter. The law gives legal opportunity for an expression of the voice of the people. Let us see if the Radical conspirators will dare to set aside the legally expressed will of the people.

The North Carolina Democracy.

The State Executive Committee of the Democratic party of North Carolina has just issued an address. It says the late defeat of the Convention was not a Radical success, but simply turned on collateral issues: that the Radical rule has been ruinous, increasing the public debt $20,000,000 in less than eighteen months; that the Democracy condemn all disorder; that the people in the State have taken too little interest in National politics; that the hope of the country lies in the National Democratic party.

Minister's Institute.

Rev. Mr. Warren pastor of the First Baptist Church in this city, will superintend the above institution to be held for the benefit of colored ministers, in Milledgeville, beginning on the 14th day of the present month and continuing for four weeks.

The instructions will be in theology and literature and are designed better to prepare the members of the Institute for the great work of preaching the Gospel to their people.

Bill to Repeal the Holcombe Bill.

Our immediate Representative, Captain Henry Jackson, has with great promptness sought to introduce this bill, so vitally important to the city of Atlanta. It comes up to-day. We trust every Democrat will give the matter his assistance. Captain Jackson will push it with his accustomed energy and ability. Let the bill become law without delay.

Gen. Wofford for Governor.

Editors Constitution: As the Legislature will, no doubt, provide for an election for Governor of Georgia in a short time, and as the people will be casting about for the candidate for that high office, allow me to suggest the name of Gen. Wm. T. Wofford, of Bartow county, for the position.

There never was a time when the demand was greater for a cool, clear-headed, honest man in the executive chair of the State. Gen. Wofford is a sound Democrat on present issues, has in the past served his country at home and on the field with gallantry and distinction. I think, and the people think, there is no man within the borders of this great State who would serve her more efficiently, more honestly than Gen. Wofford.

Those to see the Democracy of the State a unit at this trying time, and take up and elect a man who will be an honor alike to himself and them.

GEORGIA.

Hon. Hugh Buchanan.

Editors Constitution: I understand that Chief Justice Lochrane does not desire his nomination sent to the Senate for ratification, and hence at an early day there will be a vacancy on the Supreme Bench, and I wish to suggest a suitable gentleman for the place, to-wit: Hon. Hugh Buchanan, of Newnan. Mr. Buchanan is not only a tried Democrat, but a lawyer of experience and distinguished ability in every way fitted to adorn the exalted position for which he is recommended.

DEMOCRAT.

General Young, of Georgia.

Our Georgia advices give us to understand that General Young's friends have determined to use his name in the forthcoming contest before the next Legislature for United States Senator. In this connection the General Young by his fellow-citizens of Georgia, we are glad to note the assurance of their satisfaction—a satisfaction deservedly secured—with his course, not only as a Representative in Congress from the Seventh District of his State, but also as a member of the "Resident Congressional Committee," and in his more comprehensive capacity as a member of the Democratic party of the country. Aware, as we are, of General Young's claims upon his friends and upon the party in Georgia in connection with his political services, we avail ourself of this occasion to wish for him that success in his contest before the Legislature of Georgia for Senator which he has so justly earned for his fidelity to principle and devotion to the best interests of the Democracy. We have been not inattentive spectators, here at the seat of Government, of General Young's course in Congress, and in view of the confidence and partiality which his people ex-hibit for him, bringing him forward for one of the highest offices, if not the highest office, to which a citizen of a State may aspire at the hands of his fellow-citizens, we recognize the fact that his conduct here as a Representative in Congress has met with that substantial vindication at home which is at once the best evidence of the capacity, integrity and devotion of a public servant, and of his fitness for any higher sphere of duty to which his constituents may desire to call him. As having, therefore, commanded this confidence as a member of the Democratic party, State and National, and an active advocate of Democratic principles, General Young's claims upon the Georgia Legislature can be safely left in the hands of his friends. There are many distinguished Georgians who would fill the seat of United States Senator with dignity to themselves and with credit to their State. From the ranks of these patriotic and worthy citizens the selection of General Young for United States Senator would, we feel convinced, meet with [illegible] of the party.—Wash-

For Governor.

Editors Constitution: At this peculiar juncture of our political affairs it behooves every good citizen of Georgia to ponder well "the situation," and with prudence and patriotism work out the path of duty, and then with the characteristic manliness of Georgians, act.

That an extraordinary feat of political strategy has just been inaugurated by Bullock, there is no doubt. To avert a calamity fraught with tremendous consequences to the honest purpose of your humble correspondent.

Bullock has resigned. Mrs. Conley, President of the out-going Senate, is sworn in as Governor just on the eve of the assembling of the new Legislature, and, of course the election of President of the in-coming Senate. Bullock hopes, no doubt, that the President of the Senate elected at this term will claim the right to be sworn in as Governor under the Constitution; that Governor Conley will resist any encroachment upon his prerogatives as Governor; that the excitement and perhaps some demonstration on the part of the people, when Governor Conley will seize upon the pretext and appeal to President Grant for United States troops to aid him in carrying on the government of the State by suppressing "the rebellion," and thereby get Georgia under martial law as good doomed, down-trodden South Carolina, and the little that Bullock has not stolen will afford "pecking" for his "lesser lights" during the year 1872; and peradventure in the mean while, thereby completely control Georgia with Federal bayonets both in the State and national elections.

But the trick is too shallow with an intelligent Legislature with which Georgia is this year blessed. Bullock will be thwarted in his purpose. Democrats will adhere to the very letter as well the spirit of the Constitution. Mr. Conley to by accident Governor of Georgia under the Constitution, and will continue until a successor is elected and qualified (Constitution art. 4, sec. 2). When is that time? anxiously asks the reader. Let the Constitution speak for itself. "The General Assembly will have power to provide by law for filling unexpired terms by a special election." Then let the Legislature, as soon as organized, "provide by law for filling the unexpired term" of R. B. Bullock "by a special election." The election will be had. Let it be conducted calmly and dispassionately, and the days of this corrupt and dirty State administration will be drawing to a close and its end nigh at hand.

And now, Mr. Editor, in view of that glorious day for Georgia, I beg to make one suggestion more, and I have done.

Georgians, do you know to whom you are indebted for the sudden exit of R. B. Bullock? Do you know who it is that has unearthed the hidden and blackened deeds of this man Bullock that the Legislature might reach him? Who was it, when Bullock, with his plans well matured, sitting as a potentate under the cover of Federal bayonets, seeking to bankrupt the State, interposed in our behalf at his peril, kept at bay the plunderer, and publicly exposed from time to time his nefarious purposes? In short, who was it that "bearded (not "the lion in his den" but) the Bullock in his haunts of thieving and plunder? that made bare his arm and did protect the people of Georgia? It was none other than the able and efficient Treasurer, N. L. Angier. He stood by our interest faithfully at his own peril in preference to enriching himself at the expense of the people.

Now, Mr. Editor, is that all. Mr. Angier, from force of circumstances, is perfectly familiar with the finances of the State. The hundreds of thousands of dollars in bonds that have been issued, their status, etc. He has, at heavy personal cost, ferreted them out, and the acts of Bullock connected therewith, and immediately over his own signature he would expose, through the press, the villainy he had traced up, and by so doing he brought to disappointment and grief the projects of an unscrupulous and miserable adventurer.

Now, Mr. Editor, let the people of Georgia show their gratitude to a faithful servant by putting him in the Gubernatorial chair for the brief "unexpired term," since by his bold and manly course that "unexpired term" has been saved to the people of Georgia, which otherwise would have been the year for plunder if not the total bankruptcy of the State.

N. L. Angier is truly a Democrat. He accepted reconstruction as a necessity, and when Georgia elected her United States Senators after the war, in the persons of her greatest and noblest sons, Alexander H. Stephens and Herschel V. Johnson, immediately N. L. Angier, of his own volition and sense of duty, urged incessantly upon the "powers that be" at Washington, the admittance of those distinguished gentlemen to their seats in the Senate. Though he acted with the "reconstructionist," no sooner had that hydra-headed monster Radicalism, synonimous with corruption and plunder, showed itself, than it encountered instanter a formidable foe in the person of N. L. Angier.

Give him the one year "unexpired time," and let him show to the people of Georgia that he can and will do more toward reclaiming our ruined fortunes in one year than perhaps any other good citizen of Georgia could do under like circumstances.

DEMOCRAT.

Editors Constitution: As your correspondent "Veritas" is in error as to the proper time at which the present Legislature elects State House officers, please allow me space in your paper to correct him. To make the election occur in 1872, he assumes that the term of the present officers does not expire until January, 1873, whereas, the Constitution and the Ordinance of the Convention, makes the term of the Governor and State House officers expire on Tuesday, after the first Monday in November, 1872, one day before the meeting of the next session as now provided by law, and as the 1363d and 1364th section of the Code says that they shall be elected at the "sitting or session immediately preceding the beginning of the term" of the new officers, it follows, of course, that the present session of the Legislature makes the election.

But let us see what the new Constitution and the Code says:

Article 3 section 1, and Article 4 section 1, provided that the first election for members of the Legislature and Governor should be held within sixty days after the adjournment of the convention, but that after that time the elections shall be on Tuesday after the first Monday in November every second year. Article 4 section 1 says the "Governor shall hold his office during the term of four years, and until such time as a successor shall be elected and qualified."

As the Governor and members of the Senate of even numbered districts were elected for four years, in April, 1868, and were installed and went into office in July, 1868, had nothing further been said in the Convention, their terms of office would have expired in July of next year, 1872.

But the Convention, in passing an ordinance to bring on the first election for these and other officers in 1868, also provided that "the persons so elected or appointed shall continue in office till the regular succession, provided for after the year 1868; so that said officers shall, each of them, hold their offices as though they were elected on Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1868, or elected or appointed by the General Assembly next thereafter."

By this ordinance it will be seen that Bullock's term was extended from July, 1868, to Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1872, which gave him four years and about four months time.

Article 4, section 2, provides that the Secretary of State, Comptroller General and Treasurer "shall hold their offices for the like period of the Governor"—that is for four years. As the present officers were elected in August, 1868, this extended their term to four years and about three months.

Now, what says the Code? The 1363d section provides that "the elections for Senators of the United States Congress from this State shall be held by the General Assembly during the sitting or session immediately preceding the beginning of the term which they are to fill."

And section 1364 provides that the Judges of the Supreme Court, the Secretary of State, the Comptroller General, the State Treasurer, Printer and Bank Directors are elected by the same rule as to time.

Now, as by law, (see act of 1870,) no other general session can be held before the Winter of 1872, after the first Monday in November, 1872, after the beginning of the term of the new officers, and as the Constitution is silent as to the time of the election of these new officers, and as the Code says that they "shall be held at the sitting or session immediately preceding the beginning of the term" of the new officers, I don't see how any legal mind can have any doubt about this matter.

It is true the Legislature may [illegible] part of the Code, as it said [illegible] does not [illegible] Constitution, but [illegible] Code, as it [illegible] Constitution, [illegible] Code, as it [illegible] Constitution, [illegible] Code, as it [illegible] Constitution,

FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.—Rough announces himself as a candidate for the United States Senate. And all the members who do not vote for him ought to subscribe to the Ready Reporter.

GOVERNOR BULLOCK'S CARRIAGE.—We are informed by the officer having the attachment against the carriage and plano of Governor Bullock, that the plaintiff instructed him to proceed no farther with the matter before he had attached the property. The amount of the claim was only $250.

NOT MUCH OF A MISTAKE.—The types made the first resolution adopted by the Central Committee of the Republican party read: "The Republican party is the only party pledged to the unconditional supremacy and perpetuity of the American Union." (Italics our own.) The word was unconditional, but the types knew better what it should mean the author of the resolutions. The types only made no blunder.

A GOOD PAPER.—The Monroe Advertiser, published at Forsyth, Georgia, by James P. Harrison, was awarded a gold medal and premium at the exhibition of the Agricultural and Industrial Association, recently held at Atlanta, as the best weekly newspaper published in the State.

Merchants of Atlanta will find the Advertiser a splendid medium for communicating with the planters and merchants of middle Georgia.

C. H. C. Willingham, of the LaGrange Reporter; Col. R. H. Jones, of the Macon Telegraph; Col. J. C. Easton, of the Newnan Herald; Gen. A. R. Wright, and J. W. Call, of the Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel; and Col. C. W. Styles, of the Albany News, are in the city.

CAPTAIN JOHN C. BRAIN.—This gentleman, who was so long incarcerated in a Northern prison, reached our city last night, and is at the Kimball House. He is delivering through the country, a series of lectures, describing his adventures in the Confederate service, among which were the daring exploits of capturing the United States steamer vessels and the United States mail packet steamer. The Captain was kept in Federal prisons for years after the close of the war, and from the cruelty to which he was subjected, he is crippled for life. His literary efforts are the gallant gentleman's sole dependence for a livelihood.

COLONEL JAMES D. WADDELL.—The gentleman whose name heads this paragraph is a candidate for Clerk of the House of Representatives, and will most probably receive the nomination at the hands of the Democratic caucus of the members elect. He will doubtless be remembered as the efficient Clerk of the House in the year of '66 '67. The manner in which the duties of that office were filled by him during the sessions of that Legislature is remembered by all. The services which he afterwards so ably rendered the State in the Constitutional convention has caused him to all who then watched him as the champion of the rights of the true people. Were we to go back and refer to the services rendered his State in "the days that tried men's souls;" were we to refer to the marks that to-day he carries on his person, and will carry through life, fit testimonials of his true manhood, all will concede that he has claims upon the public which should be rewarded by the representation of a grateful people.—Middle Georgian.

THE KIMBALL HOUSE.—At the Kimball House yesterday we learned of a little incident that illustrates the genius of good management. The dining-room waiters, a few minutes before dinner, struck in a body for higher wages, though generally paid. They picked their time sagaciously, trusting that the pressure of a house full of guests made them so necessary as to force compliance with their demands. Without a moment's hesitation, Mr. Crittenden called in a policeman and ejected the last one fully paid. This sudden change of a large force of trained employees did not make a ruffle in the smooth management of the house. Calling waiters from the large numbers of extra servants always kept in reserve for emergencies, and employing others, the enterprising proprietor rolled smoothly over the breaker, and no one would have known of the ruffle unless he had mentioned it.

Mr. Crittenden is preparing new attractions for this splendid hotel for the next year, so that a more brilliant year of success may be expected than ever this year.

To-night there will be a fine hop at the Kimball House.

BOLD ATTEMPT AT BURGLARY.—Tuesday night a bold attempt was made to burglarize the store of our popular tailor, Jerry Lynch, on Whitehall street, near the Railroad Crossing. About eleven o'clock, Mr. Lynch states that he was aroused from sleep by hearing a noise at his front window. One of the panes was slightly cracked and he heard some one cautiously removing pieces of glass and, during the noise produced by a train going out or coming in, broke out all the glass. Mr. Lynch hastily procuring his pistol, fired, the ball passing through a box of necktles and striking the window sash in close proximity to the hand of the burglar, who was just about grasping a box of "Star" Shirts. The thief broke and run, followed by Mr. Lynch clad in drawers and night shirt. The thief distanced him, however, and escaped.

Mr. Lynch is good at "suits" and "shoots." Had it not been that a paper curtain shut out a clear view of the man, Mr. Lynch could have taken better aim.

The "Star" Shirts are decidedly popular, and so is Jerry Lynch. But thieves in future will give him and his shirts the go by.

JUST RECEIVED—Miss Magill's new work, entitled "WOMEN." Also, new styles of Fancy Stationery, at Phillips & Crew's.

OUR FASHION LETTER.

Fashions for November.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.]

NEW YORK, November 1, 1871.

HOW CITY PEOPLE LIVE.

Country cousins are apt to think city people very pretentious and terribly mean. They have welcomed them to the comfort of cottage and farm in the heat of summer; have shared their new-laid eggs, their sweet milk, their fresh vegetables, and have been overwhelmed by the air of style and fashion which somehow imparted itself to the very cut of their collars and the tie of their cravats. They have natural longing to see exactly what it is that produces such results. They have read gorgeous accounts of city life and city doings in newspapers and novels, and they imagine that life in a large city means for every one a brown stone mansion, a retinue of servants, a box at the Opera, horses, carriages, unlimited shopping, and parties every evening. They eagerly accept a lukewarm invitation, and find the reality in a "flat" as a "floor" with everything including the eatables and the finery which seemed so captivating stowed away in the closets, potatoes purchased by the "small measure" and apples by the quart, unless a compromise has been effected with gentility by taking a house and a "few" boarders.

In either case the dream of city grandeur is over, and the vivid rural imagination flies instantly to the opposite extreme, and pronounces it all utterly mean and unworthy, and not unfrequently credits innocent city friends with the bitterness of its own disappointment. It is impossible for the country dweller, with the wood pile within reach, the chickens always at hand, the hens cackling in the yard, and the teeming garden and orchard stretching down to the bountiful wheat fields, to imagine the struggle through which the working resident of a city finds and holds his chance to live.

They cannot realize that a foot of land in the city is a farm in the country; that a year's rent costs the price of a house and lot; that the perishable products of field and garden must bring what are to them fabulous prices in order to pay for the cost of transit, the labor of the hands through which they pass, and the certainty of loss by decay and spoliation.

FRENCH FLATS.

Rents alone and the impossibility of occupying space so valuable with small houses renders living in cities, for all but the very wealthy and the very poor, a vast and difficult problem, the first solution to which seems to have been found in the modern system of "flats."

Heretofore the experiments in this direction have met with very indifferent success; they have resulted only in an expansion of the tenement house system and a tenfold exaggeration of its prices. Necessity, however, has been the mother of perseverence in this case, and the last effort is much better than the first.

New York has now really two fine specimens of the French "flat" style of architecture; one is being completed by Mr. Paran Stevens, the other is on the corner of Fifteenth street and Fifth avenue, and was remodelled from the old New York Club House. The latter has seventy-four suits of apartments, for seventy-four different families, all of which are occupied, and the demand for house room in a central location can be imagined when suits or "apartments" for families upon the fifth floor rent for twenty-one hundred dollars per annum, and on the fourth for twenty-two hundred dollars for the same period of time. The lower the floor the higher the prices, a Reverend editor and his wife paying two thousand dollars per year for four rooms only. The rents in these cases absorb at least half the cost of living, but then the method reduces considerably the cost and trouble of the other half. The rooms connecting, there is none of the trouble of going up and down stairs; no door bells to answer, no halls to keep clean, no furnaces fire to keep going; and a general restaurant and laundry, at a moderate charge, being connected with the establishment, no cooking or washing to be done, unless preferred.

One servant is therefore sufficient for the needs of a family, while the mistress of the house is relieved of two-thirds of the burden of its cares and anxieties.

The high prices and limited accommodations, restricts them, at present, to persons of liberal income, and it is rather curious to note that the majority of the first occupants of the best class of French flats are the families of distinguished editors and journalists, who have lived very much abroad. When the idea, as exhibited in these structures, becomes a popular fact, it may afford the most reasonable solution of the present vexed question of housekeeping. Even now, it points to a quiet revolution in many of the formulas and usages of society, and as an indication of a new social departure, is worthy of attention.

THE EVENTS OF THE SEASON.

So many commercial disasters have followed in the train of a great Western calamity, that the hopes and anticipations of an unusually gay season have been considerably dampened. Were it not for the advent of Nilsson in opera, and the Grand Duke Alexis, there would be little chance for a social revival, until Christmas or New Year's make gayety, or at least festivity, a necessity.

It was strange what an instantaneous effect a stringent money market produced in city trade. No purchases of $500 suits for one week; and many were the fears that heavy stocks of rich garments would be left on the hands of the importers; but, as a shrewd French dressmaker remarked, "No need to be alarmed; ladies must dress, panic or no panic, and though men nearly always begin with retrenchment at home, they end by drawing a check and ordering their wives to come out finer than ever, in order to keep up their dignity and credit."

The preludes to the Nilsson opera season were the Dolly concerts, Mrs. Moulton and Madame Van Zandt in "Satanella," at the Academy. The Dolly concerts were a treat to the oldest concert goers. They were in every respect admirable. Every singer was an artist, and Mr. Santly's magnificent baritone voice worth going miles to hear. Madame Van Zandt is not Nilsson, but she has a sweet, fresh, pure, well-trained voice, and good method, although she lacks dramatic power. Mrs. Moulton is a good amateur, but a bad artist.

Neither of these attractions brought out beauty or fashion in full force. That triumph was reserved for Nilsson. The first night of her appearance was indeed a sight to see, and one to be remembered. The Academy was ablaze with light, perfume and flowers. Excitement and the enchantment of dress gave a superhuman beauty to the women, which inspired the men, and, together with the music, lifted them for once out of the region of stocks and stables. It was a great achievement for one young girl.

For a day or two, however, the topic of conversation has naturally been the ball given to Grand Duke Alexis. Tickets were $100 each, and of course only the magnates and their wives, with now and then a daughter, were present. All the old lace and all the old diamonds of New York turned out to grace the occasion; and there were plenty of gorgeous toilettes, if not very beautiful or fascinating women. It was rather hard on the Duke, though, as it was on Prince Arthur, the Prince of Wales, and all the other sprigs of royalty, who have at different times honored us with their presence, that the pretty girls are crowded out; and the visitors, who naturally want to see them, condemned to the society of stout dowagers, who have a right to them by virtue of position. Verily, rank and royalty have their drawbacks.

BALL AND DINNER DRESSES.

The prediction that poufs and paniers would be abandoned, has already been realized. The two leading houses in Paris have discarded them, and the later importations acquire a grace, a freshness, and novelty, which cannot be appreciated by description, simply from the absence of the binding and puffing of which we had become so weary. Trains are still long, though not so exaggerated as formerly, and are strictly confined to evening, or ceremonious toilettes—the semi-train is allowed for carriage dresses, but is considered regular to the very last degree, when worn for a promenade.

Dressy servant girls have about used up the short rats in New York City. On their Sunday's out, they walk up the area steps, their skirts trailing at least half a yard, and sweep the dust with as much non chalance as the finest lady. "I shall have my walking dresses cut to clear the ground," remarked a lady, when some one of these exhibitions, and he did. But it is a mystery how any one can walk behind a trailing dress in the street, and not be inspired by so strong a sentiment of disgust, as to prevent them from ever following the example, no matter who was the wearer. Jacket bodies trimmed to simulate a waistcoat are almost universal for handsome dinner toilettes of faille or soft twilled ...hed levantine; the body part does not ...descend below the waist, but the ... forms cappots, as a sort of square ...t, and crossed ends at the back. Strict coat sleeves not unfrequently accompany these models.

The sheets are either made with an overskirt, or to simulate one, the "Court trains," so-called, being reserved for still more elaborate costume of velvet or faille.

An elegant dress of black velvet and amber faille, was lately made for the Washington season which was very striking.

The train was of black velvet, and it was cut out in van dykes over a flat pleated flounce of faille, which commenced at the sides and surrounded the back of the skirt. The petticoat was of faille, and was trimmed with narrow scant flounces, cut out and bound with velvet. The basque was of velvet van dykes upon the edge, and cut short at the back, so as to display a wide sash of faille. The front was trimmed as a waistcoat with old Venetian point, and wide ruffles of the same costly lace finished the sleeves, which were of faille with vandyked band of velvet and bow of the silk.

This dress is described minutely because it was one of the most perfect in design and execution ever made in this city, and because the combination of contrarting colors and different colors which have not been worn since the 17th century are this season brought into juxtaposition. Prune and light blue, for example, velvet and English pink, tea rose and light green.

This has suggested to many a good way of utilizing old silk evening dresses, which, in some instances, has proved very successful.

A pale blue silk, for example, has been remodeled by trimming with deep pleating of white French muslin, edged with Valenciennes lace. The lower one of these pleatings lengthened the skirt, whilst others stimulated an upper skirt and quite modernized the waist and sleeves.

Another of light, rich green silk, had the back part of the skirt cut entirely out, and its place occupied by a train of black silk, trimmed with a flounce, the heading to which was lined with green. The front of the skirt, which was green, was trimmed with narrow black and green flounces, alternating. The part of the skirt which was thus cut out, was made into a basque, with pazoda sleeves, and trimmed with black and green to match.

In this way two really elegant costumes were created at less than the cost of one.

are generally composed of silk, or of some very light material like tulle or tarletane. Few white swiss overskirts are seen with night evening silks although some very beautiful complete dresses of embroidered white French muslin are worn with silk strips beneath.

The newest toilettes, however, have overskirts of silk or crape to match the dress, richly embroidered and trimmed with fringe. In many instances, the silk is cut out to form the design, and the embroidery executed in the raised stitch of the Grover and Baker machine. Upon crape, hand embroidery is used sometimes on the variegated colors, and rich lace used to form the foundation for the fringe.

Simple ball dresses for young girls are of tarletane, white or colored, made with two or three skirts and trimmed with thick tarletane ruches. The white are all white, the colors light evening green, blue, maize, or rose color, have white ruches.

Dresses for dancing parties are not cut long, as they are a nuisance to the wearer and everybody else, and young girls who dance and like to dance a great deal, will find it infinitely safer and pleasanter, every way to have two or three thin, inexpensive evening dresses, cut without a train, and requiring only short underskirts and altogether less elaboration of toilet.

Brussels net puffed over a stiff foundation and finished with an upper skirt trimmed with niches, makes a cheap and pretty dress, which can be washed, as also can a dress of white French muslin, trimmed with plaitings of the same, headed with puffing, or insertions of lace. A simple toilet is one of the exclusive privileges of a young girl, and if she is wise, she will be glad to avail herself of it. In a few years white muslin will be voted "juvinile," and simplicity an affectation of youthfulness, and she will look with tender regret upon the remnants of the old muslin or pretty grenadine which did hard duty so many times at balls and parties, and was always ironed out to look very well, with flowers and whitened shoes and cleaned gloves, and the long thin chain, with a locket which had been "mother's." Perhaps you would laugh now, my young lady reader, at such a toilette, but let me tell you there were brighter eyes and fewer wall-flowers in those days, and the young men seemed to find nothing amiss in the dresses or those who wore them.

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

One improvement we have to make with pleasure this season, and that is in the quality of the dress materials, and the gradually increasing favor with which "material" costumes, as they are called abroad, are regarded.

Time was when an American lady thought she could not go into the street without putting on a silk dress, and even the short suits were hardly considered en règle, unless partly composed of a silken fabric. As for a dinner dress, even at home, it must be of silk, and, utterly, garnished with point lace, or the wearer felt en dishabille, and not in a condition to bear scrutiny.

The blow given to luxury and extravagance, by the fall of the French Empire, and the greater preponderance obtained by German and English ideas, is already exerting a marked influence, and gradually taking us back to a period when dress was made to conform, in some degree, to the needs of the wearer, and a fine French merino was thought good enough for "best" by the wives of men who could have bought up the husbands of half the gayly dressed women to be seen in an hours walk.

Nothing can be softer to the touch, or more becoming to the wearer, than the fine cashmeres, merinos and all-wool Empress cloths, which we have in such fine shades, and, recently, of admirable qualities. The manufacture is principally English, the best country in the world for materials, and the worst for styles. In addition to these we have excellent all-wool satines at a very moderate price, all-wool serges and reps, and velours, better in quality and lower in price than for several years. The "French" poplins, so-called, not unfrequently sold for Irish poplins are handsome and durable, but like all mixtures, will neither dye nor clean. A drop of rain makes them "crinkle up," and so although they do not wear out easily, they are not profitable or satisfactory to thrifty persons.

They would prefer a fine all wool material at two-thirds the cost, to the best French poplin, which is composed of silk and wool, that ever was made. Imported suits and costumes copied from them, of silk, and velvet cost four and five hundred dollars each, costly lace over almost more costly fur is used for the trimming, the French houses having made the mistake of trying to out-Herod, Herod, in order to restore their prestige. The reaction shows their mistake, some women will pay an outrageous price for the sake of out shining their neighbors, but the majority have found that four hundred dollars can be much better spent, and have fallen back upon serge, Irish poplin, wool suiting, cashmere, and the like, and are surprised to find how well dressed they are, at a comparatively small cost.

FURS AND CLOAKS.

The cold weather has brought furs and cloaks into requisition and created a demand for a garment independent of suits. This is found in the pelisse or talma which was mentioned in a previous letter and in the paletonaise which forms in velvet or wadded cashmere a very handsome cloak. The cloth pelisse to which one or more capes are added is particularly adapted for a cold climate and to the present style of furs, which furnish neither warmth nor protection to the shoulders.

Fur sacks and cloaks are so very costly that they are not of the ordinary reach, and even Astrachan, which is not dressy, costs as much as a handsome cloth cloak without being half so protective or lady-like. The pelisse is not seen much as yet, but there is nothing more unique or graceful than one of these cloth habits in bottle green or mahogany brown with two or three prelerine capes attached, each one an inch smaller than the other, notched upon the edge or trimmed with fur, and completed by a muff and boa of seal skin, mink or Astrachan.

A NEW PLUMAGE TRIMMING.

A new trimming has recently been invented and brought to great perfection by an American woman, which is destined to become a very important element not only in the decoration but in the composition of garments. It consists of trimmings of all colors, and also of a fabric made from the plumage of South American birds. It is softer and more beautiful than fur and has the additional advantage of being improved by washing and by moisture, provided it is shaken and dried afterwards. It is made in all colors the darkest and the most delicate and trims ball dresses with as much grace as the softest marabout. It is cheaper than good fur and can be put to many more decorative uses.
